

Work Ethics and Citizenship

Languages Offered:

- English
- Spanish

Decision Making in the Workplace Includes Critical Thinking Skills and Knowledge of Good Work Ethics!

What is Work Ethics?

Work ethics is described as a set of moral principles an employee uses in his job. As an employee, it is important to understand that your work ethics shows in your work and in your attitude. It is important to show your respect for others, and have integrity and be professional in your workplace.

What will trainees learn?

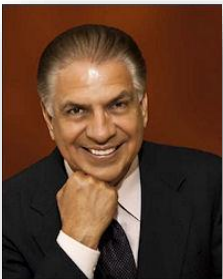

- Elements of strong work Ethic
- How to demonstrate a strong work ethic to your employer
- How quality of work shows your work ethic
- Integrity and professionalism
- Putting the company first,,,, in thought and action
- Sense of teamwork
- The importance of showing respect to others
- The importance of following the rules

How will this training benefit your company and employees?

By attending this training, you will understand the importance of having good Critical Thinking skills in the workplace. You will learn specific skills to help you think critically and learn how to demonstrate a strong work ethic in your workplace.

This training can be conducted for 8 hours or more. Onsite training may be customized to meet your business needs.

ABOUT FRANK ORTIZ

Frank Ortiz teaches and trains at the San Bernardino Community College District. He has experience in motivating and inspiring people in businesses, schools, senior facilities and small groups. He is an expert in Leadership, Communication Skills, Team Building, Supervisory Skills, and Business Strategies. In addition to his training, Frank has personally experienced a variety of management positions in his lifetime. Starting from the bottom to the top where he worked as the Vice-President of a large corporation to the CEO of his own retail chain of 14 stores. He has dedicated the last eight years strictly to his speaking career helping others achieve their goals and dreams.