“Enhancing Your Life With Quality Education”

From the Chancellor

The Measure P Citizens' Oversight Committee just released their 2006-2007 annual report. Eight members completed their second terms on the committee and, due to the By-Laws, are unable to return. I want to especially thank them for their four years of service:

Winston Carl, senior citizen group representative
Graciano Gomez, business organization representative

Dr. Elizabeth Harris, community-at-large representative
Ron O. Kibby, community-at-large representative
Wilfred C. Lemman, KVCR Foundation representative
Lenore B. Manak, taxpayer organization representative
Wesley C. McDaniel, community-at-large representative
David E. Raley, CHC Foundation representative

As well as the continuing members:

Lois J. Carson, SBVC Foundation representative
Pat Ferraris, community-at-large representative
Dennis Partain II, student representative
Laurie Stalnaker, business/labor organization representative

The entire committee should be proud of their dedication to the taxpayers to ensure tax dollars are used appropriately and for the highest good. I'm pleased to say that of the $93 million spent so far of Measure P funds, another $62 million was leveraged with state, local and federal funds. That means, for every 60 cents spent of Measure P funds, the District has spent 40 cents of matching funds from federal, state and local sources.

Most impressive though, is the work accomplished with these dollars. San Bernardino Valley College has demolished seven building and replaced them with five new ones. Crafton Hills College has spent valuable time creating a Master Plan through 2025. This planning was very inclusive, with input from faculty, staff, administrators and students.

I encourage you to access the Measure P Citizens' Oversight Committee Report to the Community on our website, www.sbccd.org.

Donald F. Averill, Ed.D.
Chancellor

Donald F. Averill

Chancellor Honored by Namesake Building

ATTC to be christened Donald F. Averill Applied Technologies Training Center

Dr. Donald F. Averill has been chancellor of the San Bernardino Community College District for seven years and is due to retire in June 2008. As recognition of his exemplary service to the District and the community, the SBCCD Board of Trustees has elected to name the new Applied Technologies Training Center (ATTC) after the chancellor.

A formal dedication and ribbon cutting ceremony for the new facility will take place on Friday, October 12, 2007 at 9 a.m. The Donald F. Averill Applied Technologies Training Center will be a high-tech training facility that delivers affordable, customized and high quality training at a pace, schedule and location convenient for employers in the Inland Empire. It is part of the Professional Development Center which runs under the auspices of the San Bernardino Community College District.

Dr. Averill will be completing 47 years of service in California public education this year. This includes teaching and administration at the secondary level for 14 years. Dr. Averill moved to the community colleges in 1977 serving as the Vice Chancellor for Educational Services for the Coast Community College District and the Vice President, Human Resources and Technology Services at Glendale Community College. Dr. Averill became Superintendent/President of Palo Verde College in 1996 before becoming Chancellor of the SBCCD.

Dr. Averill has provided state leadership in Career Technical Education, economic development, campus construction, human resources and technology. He has been active in the community, the state, and nationally in professional and civic organizations as well as providing leadership in succession of state roles in the community colleges.

Dr. Averill currently serves as the Chairman of the Board of Arrowhead United Way, Chairman-elect of the San Bernardino Area Chamber of Commerce, and Chairman of the Workforce Development Committee of the Inland Empire Economic Partnership. Dr. Averill is also active on the boards of Inland Action Inc., the San Bernardino County Workforce Investment, the Executive Committee of the P-16 Council and the Alliance for Education.

The ATTC was funded by a grant from the Economic Development Administration of the U.S. Department of Commerce, the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development and the voters in the San Bernardino Community College District through a bond measure passed in November 2002.

SBCCD Trustees Appoint New President at Valley College

Dr. Debra Daniels, district vice president of academics and student affairs at Polk Community College in Winter Haven, FL, was appointed the 13th president of San Bernardino Valley College (SBVC) at the San Bernardino Community College District Board of Trustees meeting this evening.

Dr. Daniels was one of four finalists who participated in public forums at SBVC last Wednesday. Her three-year contract begins September 10, 2007 at an annual salary of $148,248.

"I am excited and honored to serve as the next president of San Bernardino Valley College," said Daniels. "I would like to thank the Chancellor, Board, and college community for their confidence and support. I look forward to getting started and working together to fulfill the education needs of our students and our community.

Some of Daniels' major accomplishments while serving at Polk Community College are:

- Reorganized student services into a "One-Stop" concept of services delivery for improved service to students. Resulted in reduced complaints and increased efficiency.
- Developed Honors Program to provide high-achieving students with a challenging learning environment. Resulted in greater enrollment and increased enthusiasm of faculty members.
- Established Educators Preparation Institute – a collaborative venture with county school district to provide a route of alternative certification for K-12 teachers. Resulted in increased numbers of certified teachers for the county schools.
- Designed and implemented faculty and staff development programs that include orientation of new full-time and adjunct faculty members.
- Expanded Corporate College, which provides just-in-time employee training for area businesses, from just under $900,000 revenue in 2003 to $1,430,000 in 2006 which is a 63% increase.
- Spearheaded capital projects- including the major remodel of the student services area, $28 million new building construction, and renovation of a historical building for use as a center.

Dr. Debra Daniels

- Procured over $3 million in state and federal grant monies for the institution and participated in raising another $1million through foundation fundraising activities.

Prior to her higher administrative experience she served over sixteen years as program director of dental assisting and faculty member at Illinois Central College in Peoria, Illinois and three years as a faculty member at Delta College in Bay City, Michigan.

As a community college graduate, Daniels holds an associate of applied science degree in dental assisting from Delta College in Michigan, a bachelor's of science degree in allied health teacher education from Ferris State University in Michigan, a master of education degree and a doctorate of education degree specializing in community college leadership from the University of Illinois-Urbana Champaign.

Daniels replaces Denise Whittaker who is retiring after spending four years as president of Valley College and 35 years in higher education.

The San Bernardino Community College District has an 80-year history of providing quality and affordable vocational, occupational and workforce training programs through San Bernardino Valley College, Crafton Hills College in Yucaipa, the Professional Development Center and KVCR-FM/TV.

SBVC Partners with K-12 Districts On CAHSEE Grant

Over 1400 high school seniors in the San Bernardino area did not pass the California High School Exit Exam (CAHSEE) in 2007. San Bernardino Valley College has received a state grant to help these students hit the books and take the test again. The primary purpose of the California High School Exit Examination (CAHSEE) is to significantly improve pupil achievement in public high schools and to ensure that pupils who graduate from public high schools can demonstrate grade level competency in reading, writing, and mathematics.

Working with Colton Joint Unified School District, Rialto Unified School District and San Bernardino Unified School District, Valley College has designed a program that assesses deficiencies in individual students and provides an educational plan to meet the specific needs.

In addition to non-credit courses to address the students' deficiencies in English/language arts or math, there will also be workshops on study skills, test-taking, anti-anxiety, stress reduction methods, college success, life skills and the like. Plus, strong student support services (counseling, academic planning, tutoring) and orientation will be offered.

Denise Benton, Project Director, said participating students will receive Franklin Covey planners and be engaged in the 7 Habits of Highly Effective Teens. Another important component of the grant is working with the parents. There will be a special orientation for parents and workshops and seminars on financial aid with the goal of having the students continue on to college once they pass the CAHSEE.

San Bernardino Valley College hopes to serve approximately 400 students with this grant, and, more importantly, to incorporate activities that are sustainable after grant-funding ends so that the project can be expanded and used for future students who do not pass the CAHSEE. "I'm excited about the opportunity to work with these students and provide more than a second chance for them at this time in their lives," said Denise Benton.

Cheryl Marshall Takes Reins as VP of Instruction

Cheryl Marshall

The San Bernardino Community College District (SBCCD) Board of Trustees recently appointed Cheryl A. Marshall, who served as the associate dean of business and economic development at Mt. San Antonio College (Mt. SAC) for two years, to the position of Crafton Hills College vice president of instruction.

She began her new job at CHC in July.

As the CHC vice president of instruction, Marshall is the chief instructional officer charged with administering the instructional program and curriculum development at the college.

"I'm thrilled to be selected to this position," Marshall said. "It was a career goal for me to be a vice president of instruction, and CHC is a good fit."

"Coming from a huge college to a small college has been really nice," she said. "Everyone has been very welcoming and very open. I look forward to getting to know everyone."

Among Marshall's main goals is implementing the college's educational master plan, which is geared toward making CHC a premier community college for public safety and health services and for college transfer preparation.

"CHC is a very student-centered campus, which is a huge advantage," she said. "Students who are considering coming to CHC should know that they're going to get an excellent education from people who care about them."

While serving as the associate dean of business and economic development at Mt. SAC, Marshall oversaw the operations of a division comprised of 40 full-time faculty, 75 part-time faculty, and 15 programs in six departments.

She also developed and implemented special budgets based on needs assessments in the division, worked with faculty to develop Student Learning Outcomes (SLO) for each program area, guided program review activities, and facilitated the reorganization and creation of two new departments.

Marshall also worked as the Mt. SAC director of professional and organizational development for a year, and the director of the Mt. SAC Center of Excellence for six years.

Prior to working at Mt. SAC, Marshall worked for Sanwa Bank of California as the project manager of organizational development and learning.

Her teaching experiences include serving seven years as an instructor in the Cal Poly Pomona College of Business, Department of Management and Resources; four years as an instructor in the Azusa Pacific School of Business Management, and three years working in the Claremont Graduate University School of Behavioral and Organizational Science.

Marshall earned a doctorate in education from the University of Southern California in 2001, and a master of arts in industrial and organizational psychology at California State University San Bernardino in 1989.

Marshall is a member of the Association of California Community College Administrators, the California Community College Association for Occupational Education, and Phi Kappa Phi Honor Society.

Crafton Hills Radiological Technology Students Celebrate Commencement

Patrick Fite, CHC Marketing Director

Twelve students recently earned associate degrees in the Crafton Hills College (CHC) - Arrowhead Regional Medical Center (ARMC) School of Radiological Technology. All 12 of the graduates passed the Radiology Board Exams and are now registered radiologic technologists (RRT). The radiological program consists of clinical and classroom learning experiences conducted at ARMC. Students register for the program through CHC.

The Radiological Program is a two-year program requiring students to be at the AMRC 40 hours a week. The classroom curriculum provides students with fundamental radiographic knowledge. The clinical portion of the program gives students the opportunity to apply knowledge of actual radiographic procedures under supervision.

Students have the opportunity to get hands on clinical experience starting from the beginning of the program. Program graduates get more clinical experience than the state required 1,800 hours. Graduates finish the program with an impressive 2,700 hours of clinical experience.

Program graduates get more clinical experience than the state required 1,800 hours. Graduates finish the program with an impressive 2,700 hours of clinical experience.

"Radiology is an excellent profession for students who are compassionate, enjoy helping others, and like using state of the art computer technology" said Morris Hunter, director of the joint CHC-ARMC School of Radiologic Technology.

The joint CHC-ARMC School of Radiological Technology (X-Ray Tech Program) prides itself in its 100 percent student graduation and employment success rate. Ten students and four alternates are accepted into the program per year.

"The best thing that happened to the program is its affiliation with CHC, because prior to our affiliation with CHC, students did not have the associate of science degree option," Morris said. "The degree option provides students with the opportunity to advance in a specialized field of radiology by completing one additional year (two years total) of coursework."

Graduates of the x-ray tech program typically make $25-$30 an hour depending on their hiring location. After completing the requirements of the program, students must pass a board examination prior to becoming x-ray technicians.

Radiology is a career field with numerous possibilities for advancement. During the program, students are introduced into a variety of positions in the scope of radiology that they may choose to specialize in including, nuclear medicine, magnetic resonance imaging (MRI), ultrasound and many more.

Join KVCR for Upcoming Events This Fall

Riley's Farm • Saturday, Sept. 22

Experience the 19th century old west with an evening of food, music, and entertainment at Riley's Farm, a 700-acre working orchard and living history farm in Oak Glen. The event will feature activities for the whole family, including an authentic barn hoedown with square dancing, American folk music, and a country barbecue topped off with mouthwatering, freshly-baked apple pie. Everyone is invited to take a step back in time Saturday, September 22, and jump on a hay ride, throw an axe, and pick some apples. Riley's Farm is an event for the entire family and has become a KVCR tradition.

Learn Watercolors with Terry Madden • Oct. 31-Nov. 2

A landscape and floral painter of the wet-in-wet watercolor method, Terry Madden conducts workshops with the goal of making artists comfortable with watercolor. Learn to make the most serene-looking clouds with wads of tissue paper and correct your mistakes while the paint is still wet. Madden's practical methods of painting and teaching have helped all levels of artists work better with watercolors. Presented in the KVCR Studio October 31 through November 2, this three-day event is open to the general public. In addition to this instructional workshop, all participants who pledge through KVCR will receive an original print signed by Terry Madden.

Cherryholmes • Friday, Nov. 9

The 2006 Grammy-nominated family band is known as one of the newest and hottest bluegrass groups in the music industry. The band's live show includes twin fiddles, Irish step dancing, classic country yodeling, and old-time claw hammer in addition to their dynamic bluegrass. Winning the coveted International Bluegrass Music Association Entertainer of the Year award in 2005 has only set precedence for Cherryholmes to continue to provide exceptional music to its listeners. Come experience the high-energy Nashville-based band as KVCR presents Cherryholmes in a live concert Friday, November 9, 2007.

Don't miss the chance to enjoy these great events while supporting KVCR, your local PBS and NPR station. For tickets and more information, visit www.kvcr.org or call (909) 384-4350.
